Closed between Christmas & New Year & on some holidays.

Happy New Year to everyone! 2011 was our year of gratitude. Our trip to Bolivia in November 2010 floated us over into 2011 with waves of idealism. Each morning I look out our upstairs window over our gardens around our house to the fields beyond and I appreciate all aspects of our lives. I give thanks to my mentors, my customers, my employees, my family and my friends who have gotten us to where Susie and I are now.

Business was great for RFWP in 2011 and our gross sales increased significantly. Expenses also increased so we have to watch the bottom line carefully. Our customers showed up early in the season and kept coming until early December! It was wonderful to see familiar faces and to work with so many new customers. Many beautiful conifer gardens were added to the Midwest landscape!

We had wild weather this year with a February blizzard. Wind and rain storms in July cut off electricity for 5 days. So in October, we finally installed a generator at the farm so we can sustain electricity in summer and winter for the greenhouses. With mild weather in December, we continued outside work by removing marginal trees from the fields and improving infrastructure. As a result, the buildings and properties look great.

We are well prepared for the Mid Am Horticultural Trade Show in January at Navy Pier and the Madison Garden Expo in February. March brings our 'Shady Characters: Made for the Shade' garden display to Navy Pier for the 2012 Chicago Flower and Garden Show. Our garden will highlight plants for the shade. I have developed a new PowerPoint program to showcase shade loving conifers and companion plants. We are looking forward to the American Conifer Society National Meeting in Ann Arbor, Michigan, in July. The Illinois Conifer Rendezvous meetings have been a huge success.

We continue our idealistic pursuits with Heifer International and Heifer International Foundation. We love our work with Mano a Mano International, a truly soulful organization where 95% of donations go to projects with only 5% overhead. Susie, Margaret and I would like to thank everyone who has contributed to our efforts to support these organizations.

We ended the year with the last Hosta Happening for Margaret. On December 3, 2011, the Hosta Queen Margaret lost her balance, fell and broke the ball off her left femur. She had surgery and currently is in rehab with hopes of returning to the hosta patch! She is doing really well but 93 year old bones heal slowly. The rehab staff reports that no one has tried harder to regain her mobility. We need more volunteer help than ever to continue the hosta sales.

To all of you, reach for your dreams. Stay joyful to yourself and to your family. Be a good citizen of the world and help others if you can.

Best regards,
Rich Eyre

Picea - Spruce

Spruces have been widely used in landscaping and thrive in full sun (8-10 hours), although some will do fine with 6-8 hours of sun. Groupings of large Colorado (Picea pungens) or Norway (Picea abies) spruces provide screening for homes and corporate parks. Other species that deserve attention are white spruce (Picea glauca), Serbian spruce (Picea omorika) and Oriental spruce (Picea orientalis). Cultivars of these species have been selected for color (green, blue, yellow), shape (globe, column, weeping, abstract) and growth rate. The diminutive Picea abies 'Pusch' is globe-shaped, grows 1 foot every 10 years and has tiny red cones in the spring. For elegance in a weeping and abstract form, try Picea omorika 'Pendula Bruns' - it is upright, the branches droop down and the leader angles slightly to the side. Light up an area with the golden Picea orientalis 'Skylands.' This open pyramidal form with short needles requires protection from winter winds and some shade when young.
